Mona Parsons was the only female Canadian civilian to be imprisoned by the Nazis in Occupied Holland. The story describes how Parsons, raised in rural Nova Scotia and trained as an actor, then a nurse, came to be involved in the nascent Dutch resistance in World War Two. Interrogated by the Gestapo, then sentenced to death by a Nazi military court, Parsons ultimately served three years at hard labour. An intense air attack by the Allies in March 1945 was the backdrop for her dramatic escape, aided by a young Dutch baroness. But freedom wasn't the end of her life's challenges.

Mona Parsons revisited

By Myfanwy Robbins

For anyone who believes that Wolfville, N.S.-born war heroine Mona Parsons deserves to be memorialized, this book by Andria Hill-Lehr is close to a Bible. This is the complete edition with Parsons' entire, captivating history. This woman deserves to be a role model of courage and survival for young Canadian women. Her last years and abasement by her Dutch husband are all revealed. Brava!
