In this sequel to "The 80/20 Principle", the author reveals how things really work - the universal, powerful patterns in nature, society, organizations and markets, the power laws - that can be applied successfully to life and business today. Drawn from every element of the sciences, these Power Laws - from Natural Selection to the Theory of Relativity, from the 80/20 Principle to the Tipping Point - provide clues as to how the world operates, enabling us to trace truly universal and powerful patterns, which generate insights into business. By understanding and applying them, ideas about how to be successful can be generated. Richard Koch shows how to use these Power Laws to identify and exploit business opportunities; to please the right customers; to shed light on the nature of competition; how to beat - and co-operate with - competitors.

Seriously opening wide eyes!

By Maarten Fijnaut

The books starts heavy with a lot of theories and nature laws. Pretty interesting but dry for the average business enthusiast. Even the dry stuff though is spiced up with to-the-point examples and practical implementation suggestions.

After getting in to his way of writing (and snapping out of the day dreams or ideas you come up with after reading a paragraph) you finish the book in one breath. I just read it is out of print and there is only one copy available secondhand. If you read this, GET IT AND READ IT!

This is the most interesting book I read so far. I must admit, with my energetic lifestyle I have problems finishing books and that is why I do not read everything. This is a book that I can recommend anyone and I will read again. A must read for WIRED readers and an add-on to "the 7 habits of highly effective people" by S.R. Covey (although a totally different approach and outcome).

The author is really accurate with his sources and give you a lot of new ideas of great books to read...books that I managed to finish to!
